A semester with CJ Herman is a waste of a semester of a man who doesn't know how to utilize his time. He wastes his students' time by making them wait for the first 15 minutes of class to start. His 'rigidness' is the opposite of what he should be doing to promote learning-- not being so rigid. His profs proved far more successful. Extremely dismissive, can't imagine actually enjoys teaching.

Herman cares nothing for his students and does not help them to succeed. His policy is that if you get a D you won't pass because he stopped recording lectures. This also hurts students who have to refresh what they learned in class. I'm convinced he stopped recording lectures because the lectures are boring. He is a bad professor.

My biggest issue with him is that he does not tell students what he grades his homework on. He often gives out grading criteria that are not mentioned in the homework instructions. He does not communicate enough with TAs and CAs as to what the grading criteria are versus what the assistants misinterpret to the students.
